TEMPERATURES SOAR; NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

SALUTING BENEATH his plumed hat, Dominican President Rafael Trujillo (center) reviews parade of 100,000 soldiers through capital city following inauguration. With him are his wife and brother, Hector Trujillo, secretary of war. Dominicans have complained an "international force" is threatening to invade the country.

Bradley Will Be Army Chief, Reports Insist

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—White House sources said today that President Truman definitely will name Gen. Omar Bradley to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Army chief of staff.

The timing of the switch-over in the Army high command, these sources said, depends on when Eisenhower chooses to retire and take over his new duties as president of Columbia university in New York.

The purpose of Bradley's present six-week visit to the American zones of occupation in Europe is to reorient him with the Army that will be under his command, since shortly after the end of the second world war, Bradley has been devoting himself exclusively to veterans' affairs as veterans administrator.

EISENHOWER plans to retire to take over his civilian post with Columbia university the latter part of the year but this may be speeded up.

At present, the two men in line to succeed Bradley are Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley who is chief surgeon for the veterans administration and Bradley's right hand man, and possibly Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who was director of the selective service system throughout the war.

Presidential intimates threw cold water on reports that Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, would succeed Gen. Bradley as head of veterans affairs. They said that such reports were ridiculous.

They likewise de-bunked another report that Gen. Bradley would succeed Gen.

640 MPH MARK SET BY PLANE

Jet Pilot Sees Smashing Of Supersonic Wall In Near Future

MUROC ARMY AIR BASE, Cal., Aug. 21—A Navy commander who piloted the Douglas D-558 jet plane at a record 640.7 miles an hour at the Muroc army air base, Cal., predicted today "it won't be long before we smash through the supersonic wall."

In four passes at a green smoke pyre yesterday, Commander Turner E. Caldwell, Jr., hit a top speed of 653.4 miles an hour in the blood-red, tube-shaped jet ship.

In less than 16 minutes in the air he travelled more than 90 miles to break the previous mark set last July 19 by Army Col. Al Boyd of Wright field over the same course by 16.9 miles per hour.

Commander Caldwell, an Annapolis graduate who served several years in the firestorms of destroyers before he decided to become a flyer, said the cockpit of his record-smashing plane was "hotter than the very hinges of hell."

Caldwell braved almost unbearable heat when the refrigeration unit in his cockpit failed momentarily midway in the flight.

HUNGARY STAYS OUT OF UN FOR ANOTHER YEAR

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Aug. 21—The security council barred Hungary from U. N. membership for another year today by voting down the application through nine abstentions.

The United States cast the sole negative vote, while Syria voted in favor.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko abstained on the grounds that applications of ex-enemy states should be considered only after the ratification of peace treaties.

GOP Plans New Tax Cut Drive

PRESIDENT SEES RECORD SURPLUS FOR THIS YEAR

Truman Opposes Reduction In 1949 But Republicans Will Try Again

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Republican congressional leaders predicted today that congress will take another cut at federal spending next year after President Truman forecast a record government surplus of four billion 700 million dollars for the current fiscal year.

At the same time, GOP leaders said that another tax reduction bill will be sent to the President despite the fact that Mr. Truman in his latest budget review held out no promise for reduced taxes in the fiscal year 1949.

Rep. Taber (R) N. Y., chairman of the house appropriations committee, declared that the federal surplus will be even greater than predicted by Mr. Truman unless more than was authorized in the last session of congress is spent on foreign relief.

THE STATEMENT marked President Truman's first entry into the political argument which was waged throughout the entire session of congress over whether GOP cuts in the President's budget represented "true savings" for the taxpayers.

President Truman conceded that the Republican congress had succeeded in reducing his thirty seven and one half billion dollar budget requests by a total of 528 million dollars.

JAMES PETERS INJURED WHEN CYCLE CRASHES

James Peters, 17, of 160 East Mound street, suffered a compound fracture of the lower right leg at 11:30 Wednesday when his motorcycle skidded in loose gravel on Route 104 and went over the embankment near Wayne township school.

Merle Swank, 416 South Washington street, riding with young Peters at the time of the accident, escaped injury.

Using a white shirt Swank hailed passing motorists until Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kerns, Route 2, stopped and took Peters in their automobile to Berger hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. V. D. Kerns.

James, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Peters, was taken to White Cross hospital, Columbus Thursday afternoon.

RUSSIA PROTESTS AGAINST CONFAB ABOUT GERMANY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Russia today protested to Great Britain, the United States and France against the proposed three-power conference to be held soon in London on raising the German level of industry.

It was confirmed that a protest on the meeting has been received at the state department but, pending study, its contents were not revealed.

However, it was understood that Russia took the position that the three power conference violated the terms of the Potsdam agreement.

PRICES GO UP

DAYTON, O., Aug. 21—Price increases were announced today for some models of electric refrigerators, stoves and washers made by Frigidaire division of General Motors corporation at Dayton.

GEN. OMAR N. BRADLEY, veterans administration chief, shown above talking to reporters as he left for a six-weeks tour of European bases, will succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Army chief of staff sometime in the future, White House sources said today.

Thuransky States Reds Afraid To Shoot Him

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Stephen Thuransky, whose arrest and beating by Hungarian police created an international incident last week, revealed today that his captors abstained from shooting him only because he was an American.

Thuransky, an Ohio farm machinery salesman, gave International News service an exclusive detailed account of his adventures which he said began when he "bawled out" a Communist policeman for insulting the American flag on the windshield of his car.

HE SAID that when he was arrested at Balassagyarmat without a warrant, after the Communists took over the government, a Lt. Erdos said: "Let's shoot him in the stomach and say that he resisted."

But a Lt. Gyulyas replied: "No, if we shoot him the Americans will be suspicious."

The former Columbus, O., resident quoted Chief Lombos at police headquarters as saying: "I am the almighty god around here and I can hold you. The Americans can't do anything—Russia's victorious army rules here."

When Thuransky, who has heart trouble, asked for a glass of water, Lombos said: "Beg for it, you dirty dog of an American."

Thuransky said he replied: "I don't even beg you Communists for my life."

HE QUOTED Lombos as refusing to let him call the American legation, observing that American diplomatic officials were "too scared to do anything."

Thuransky said his daughters drove 80 miles from Balassagyarmat to Budapest. They got Harrison Lewis, U. S. commercial attaché, and Fred Godsey, vice-consul, to intervene to have him transferred to a jail in the capital.

He said that while the Americans were trying to arrange for his release, two Russian plainclothesmen took him to a cellar, knocked him to the floor, kicked him, and beat him with rubber hoses. He said:

"One man put his foot on the nape of my neck and threw a heavy weight on my back twice—I am still ill from that torture."

THURANSKY said that, while being transferred to a political "horror chamber," he saw an American official limousine and jeep outside. He hit one guard with his handcuffs and kicked another in the shins. Then he fled to the car, and was whisked away as two policemen tried to grab him.

He said Lewis removed his handcuffs with a hacksaw.

Thuransky said the Hungarians refused his family an exit permit but the Americans sent him to the airport under heavy guard and flew him out in an American mission plane.

BRITISH LOAN ALMOST GONE; USE SUSPENDED

Three Withdrawals Reduce Balance To $400,000,000; To Last Two Years

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The treasury disclosed today that Britain arranged for three additional withdrawals, totaling 450 million dollars, from its fast-dwindling U. S. loan account before agreeing yesterday to suspend further use of the funds.

One withdrawal of 150 million dollars was made today. The others, in similar amounts, are to be made Aug. 25 and Aug. 29.

As a result, only 400 million dollars will remain after Aug. 29 of the three billion 750 million dollar loan originally intended to see the United Kingdom through its economic troubles until 1950.

THE BRITISH hope to protect the remaining 400 million dollars by halting conversion of sterling into dollars on all trade balances except with the United States.

A treasury spokesman said the British agreement, announced yesterday, to withhold further withdrawals pending the result of current talks stops "a run on the bank which would have busted it."

The British government has not revealed how many nations have converted their favorable sterling balances into dollars.

It is known, however, that the Indian government made a settlement with the United Kingdom in which it received 140 million dollars of the U. S. loan money.

The three and three-quarter billion dollars granted Britain in the Summer of 1946 was scheduled to last until 1950.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton explained that he hoped the stoppage would be of brief duration. He said that purchases from the United States would continue. However, many observers believed that the development, when its true significance is apparent, would create a cabinet crisis in London.

'CITY COUSIN' SHOWS UP FARM GIRLS AT FAIR

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 21—Six farmgirls had a lesson today from a city cousin in the rural art of milking cows.

The teacher was Mrs. Bernice Welch, 27, Elgin, Ill., who operates a rivet hammer in her daily job at a local radio plant.

The lesson was delivered last night as Mrs. Welch won the dairymaids' milking contest at the Kane county fair in Elgin. She weighed in 10.1 pounds of milk, about five quarts, after three minutes of furious action.

Her sister, Lois Mapes, who lives on a farm near Dundee, Ill., won second place with 9.1 pounds in the same time.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Welch was a genuine dairymaid.

The six farm girls smiled when they heard of her farm past.

SCHOOL OPENING MOVED BACK TO SEPTEMBER 15

Circleville schools will open Monday, September 15.

It was announced Thursday by the city board of education that the date of school opening had been changed from Thursday, September 11, to September 15.

First football game of the season for the CHS Tigers is scheduled for Friday, September 12, three days before school opens under the revised program.

Corn, Oats Hit Record High Marks

CHICAGO, Aug. 21—Corn and oats soared to new all-time record prices today on the Chicago board of trade.

September corn contracts climbed to $2.45 a bushel, the highest price in the 99-year history of the exchange, while oats for delivery next month burst through the 1920 record price of $1.06½ to new top of $1.08¾.

Trade fears that the drought over the corn belt would cause serious crop deterioration prompted the heavy demand for feed grains.

Wheat, catching the bullish sentiment in other pits, jumped to new seasonal highs, September priced at $2.44¾. However, wheat had a long way to go to set a new record since the all-time high is $3.05 a bushel and was set last May.

The new top for corn bests by ¼ of a cent the previous record established last Aug. 11.

MARSHALL TALK WELL RECEIVED

Inter-American Conferees Study Committee Report On Aggression

PETROPOLIS, Brazil, Aug. 21—The inter-American conference got down to the bed-rock fundamentals of its projected defense treaty today with consideration of a sub-committee report on aggression.

The report was submitted to the armed aggression committee for public debate preceding this afternoon's plenary session.

Other committees at work on various aspects of the treaty also were scheduled to meet during the day.

AS THE CONFERENCE entered its vital stages United States Secretary of State Marshall seemed successful in efforts to confine the discussions to matters of defense and exclude consideration of a "little Marshall plan" for Latin-America.

The reaction to his speech urging that economic issues be deferred was unanimously favorable among the delegations from the 20 nations at the conference.

Even Guillermo Belt, chief Cuban representative, who had demanded that clauses on "economic aggression" be inserted in the defense pact, voiced enthusiastic approval.

MERCURY ABOVE 90 AT NOON IN BUSINESS AREA

Official High Mark Of 95.5 Recorded Here; Showers Still 'On The Way'

Downtown thermometers registered from 90 to 95 degrees Thursday noon as Circleville residents sought ways and means of surviving the extended heat wave.

With no relief in sight perspiring shoppers hunted air-conditioned stores and refreshment counters frequently and avoided looking at thermometers.

At The Herald office the thermometer stood at 90 before the afternoon sun hit it. Other business district readings were 92, 93, 94 and 95. Farmers reported mid-morning recordings of 90.

Weather Observer Charles Carter reported the official high here Wednesday was 95.5 degrees. A low of 72 was recorded during the night but Thursday morning the mercury was climbing again and many Circleville residents went to work with the temperature at 80 and above.

Showers which offered slight relief in other localities have failed to reach here despite daily forecasts they were on their way. And the weather man still can give no promise that the continuing heat wave would subside.

OHIO'S LONGEST and probably most torrid August heat wave hung on tenaciously today, with only scattered afternoon and evening showers expected to bring temporary relief to parts of the Midwest inferno during the next few days.

The devilish combination of temperatures in the 90's and humidity near the saturation point continued to take a toll in lives and crops as well as to lower the efficiency of workers.

In Cuyahoga county alone the deaths of 16 persons were indirectly attributed to the heat since the torrid spell first broke out Aug. 3.

Dr. D. V. Courtright, attending physician, attributed death to a heart attack.

He was a native of Pickaway county and Circleville, and made his home with a sister, Miss Cora Henn at the home place on Lovers Lane. He was born March 16, 1887, the son of Lewis Henn and Mrs. Kathryn Dunkle Henn.

Survivors include one brother, Roy Henn, Columbus, and four sisters, Miss Cora Henn, Lovers Lane, Mrs. Clyde Hoover, Ashville, Mrs. Phillip Glenn, South Court street, and Mrs. Marvonne Ferris, Columbus; his wife, Mrs. Leona Greeno Henn; two sons, Kenneth, Mingo street, and Frederick, East Main street; two daughters, Miss Ann, Mrs. Evelyn McKirgin, East Main street and one grandson.

He was a member of Trinity Lutheran church and the Eagles lodge. The Rev. George L. Troutman will officiate at funeral services Saturday at 2:30 p. m. in the Defenbaugh funeral home. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home any time after noon on Friday.

640 MPH MARK SET BY PLANE

Jet Pilot Sees Smashing Of Supersonic Wall In Near Future

MUROC ARMY AIR BASE, Cal., Aug. 21—A Navy commander who piloted the Douglas D-558 jet plane at a record 640.7 miles an hour at the Murco army air base, Cal., predicted today "it won't be long before we smash through the supersonic wall."

In four passes at a green smoke pyre yesterday, Commander Turner E. Caldwell, Jr., hit a top speed of 633.4 miles an hour in the blood-red, tube-shaped jet ship.

In less than 16 minutes in the air he travelled more than 90 miles to break the previous mark set last July 19 by Army Col. Al Boyd of Wright field over the same course by 16.9 miles per hour.

Commander Caldwell, an Annapolis graduate who served several years in the firerooms of destroyers before he decided to become a flyer, said the cockpit of his record-smashing plane was "hotter than the very hinges of hell."

Caldwell braved almost unendurable heat when the refrigeration unit in his cockpit failed momentarily midway in the flight.

HUNGARY STAYS OUT OF UN FOR ANOTHER YEAR

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Aug. 21—The security council barred Hungary from U. N. membership for another year today by voting down the application through nine abstentions.

The United States cast the sole negative vote, while Syria voted in favor.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko abstained on the grounds that applications of ex-enemy states should be considered only after the ratification of the peace treaties.

PRICES GO UP DAYTON, O., Aug. 21—Price increases were announced today for some models of electric refrigerators, stoves and washers made by Frigidaire division of General Motors corporation at Dayton.

Working on the belief that an arsonist is responsible for the blazes which have destroyed two barns and started two other minor blazes within a year on the William Plum farm north of Ashville, Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff and the state fire marshal Thursday were continuing their investigation of the latest blaze.

A barn containing a quantity of hay and straw were destroyed Tuesday night, and stimulated a renewed search for the person or persons responsible.

52 REPORT AT FIRST FOOTBALL DRILL OF YEAR

Tigers To Open 1947 Season Here With Holy Rosary As Opponent

Hot and humid weather cut short the first Circleville high school football practice of the season Wednesday afternoon. Fifty-two candidates reported for the 1947 CHS Tiger grid squad in answer to the first call issued by Coach Steve Brudzinski. More boys are expected to join the group daily. Coach Brudzinski and his assistant, Tommy Bennett, immediately put the boys to work and informed them there would be plenty of practice before the season opens September 12, the day after school starts.

RUNNING AND other light conditioning exercises in shorts were the order of the day Wednesday. The session was cut short when several of the boys showed signs of being affected by the heat.

Thursday at 9:30 a. m. the boys were back at it again and in the afternoon they were to report for more work. Twice-a-day drills are scheduled until school starts. Coach Brudzinski said there would be no strenuous workouts until the heat wave breaks.

COACH BRUDZINSKI seemed optimistic at the beginning of the football season here. Several key players from last year will be missing when the Tigers oppose Columbus Holy Rosary here in less than a month but Steve pointed out that there were several capable reserves last year and several youngsters on the reserve team are expected to step into their places.

In addition to the regular 10-game schedule Coach Brudzinski is trying to lineup a couple of practice games for his varsity and several reserve games. He hopes to have the reserves playing a larger schedule than last year. Three new teams appear on the 1947 Tiger schedule. Newcomerstown will come here October 10; the Tigers will go to Marion October 31 and will meet Wellston for the first time October 14.

The complete schedule:

HUNDREDS OF industrial plants reported heavy absenteeism and some industries were closing down early in the afternoon.

A cooler air mass out of Canada, which was expected to bring relief to Ohio and other areas, cut across the north into the New England states where the maximum temperatures yesterday were in the comfortable 70's.

SHOWERS BROUGHT a small measure of comfort to some spots yesterday. Akron had 1.03 inches of rain, while much smaller amounts fell in a few other places.

Most showers, however, only increased the humidity. As an example, a brief shower in Toledo yesterday afternoon turned the landscape into something resembling a steaming jungle.

From the vantage point of the astra dome on General Motors' "Train of Tomorrow" on a run between Toledo and Cleveland, an International News Service correspondent reported most crops appeared badly in need of rain. Heat records at Columbus and Cleveland indicated that the current hot spell was matching or exceeding previous August records.

At Columbus the accumulated departure in temperatures for the first 20 days of the month was plus 117 degrees, the same as the record hottest August of 1900.

Cleveland for the same period has had plus 152 degrees, putting the city well on its way to exceed the record for August, 1938. The humidity at Cleveland this morning showed 8.30 grains of moisture per cubic foot of air, compared with a normal of 5.70 and the discomfort stage of 7.50 grains.

MARION, O., Aug. 21—Belief mounted today that 20-month-old Judy Carolyn Peterson was kidnaped from her home near Waldo, 10 miles south of Marion, as a continuing search for the blonde, curly-haired child unearthed no further trace of her.

estimated the overall savings at three billion, 163 million dollars. President Truman contended that there can be no promise of a tax reduction next year or at any time until the extent of international commitments are clearly known.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE, who twice vetoed Republican tax reduction bills in the last session, asserted the record surplus, together with part of the treasury's cash balance, would be used to reduce the nation's 260 billion dollar public debt.

He foresaw overall government expenditures for the current fiscal year amounting to 39.2 billion dollars with receipts from the public totalling 44.7 billion dollars. From the five and one half billion dollar surplus anticipated in his statement, social security and similar trust fund deductions must be made.

The chief executive advised that the budget to be submitted to congress next January will be scaled down even more than the "hard-boiled" budget offered in the last session. He defended the latter, however, with the statement that GOP economy drive resulted in "drastic reductions in the requests for a number of worthwhile programs."

President Truman declared that congress had cut one billion, 520 million dollars from his ap-

proportion requests but had been required to restore 992 million dollars because of revisions and added estimates.

HE FURTHER asserted that congress would have to restore 848 million dollars in the next session. He commented that congress already had recognized that some of their reductions "such as those for tax refunds and the atomic energy commission" would have to be restored. The President in his review cautioned that his prediction of a record surplus and his revised budget estimates "are based on a continuance of employment, prices and incomes close to their present levels throughout the fiscal year."

Subcommittees meeting in closed sessions already had begun drafting the defense pact before Marshall made his first major address to the conference.

PRESIDENT SEES RECORD SURPLUS FOR THIS YEAR

(Continued from Page One) estimated the overall savings at three billion, 163 million dollars. President Truman contended that there can be no promise of a tax reduction next year or at any time until the extent of international commitments are clearly known.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE, who twice vetoed Republican tax reduction bills in the last session, asserted the record surplus, together with part of the treasury's cash balance, would be used to reduce the nation's 260 billion dollar public debt.

He foresaw overall government expenditures for the current fiscal year amounting to 39.2 billion dollars with receipts from the public totalling 44.7 billion dollars. From the five and one half billion dollar surplus anticipated in his statement, social security and similar trust fund deductions must be made.

The chief executive advised that the budget to be submitted to congress next January will be scaled down even more than the "hard-boiled" budget offered in the last session. He defended the latter, however, with the statement that GOP economy drive resulted in "drastic reductions in the requests for a number of worthwhile programs."

President Truman declared that congress had cut one billion, 520 million dollars from his ap-

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY LOST ALONG LAKE ERIE SHORE

CHATHAM, Ont. Aug. 21 — Weary searchers hunted in steaming marshland along the Canadian shore of Lake Erie today for two-year-old Peter Briscoe of Chatham.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Briscoe, said their only child wandered away from their Summer home near Rondeau park about 6 p. m. yesterday. A posse of 500 organized by provincial police searched throughout the night, without success, and renewed the hunt this morning.

proportion requests but had been required to restore 992 million dollars because of revisions and added estimates.

HE FURTHER asserted that congress would have to restore 848 million dollars in the next session. He commented that congress already had recognized that some of their reductions "such as those for tax refunds and the atomic energy commission" would have to be restored. The President in his review cautioned that his prediction of a record surplus and his revised budget estimates "are based on a continuance of employment, prices and incomes close to their present levels throughout the fiscal year."

THE SECRETARY of state told the delegates that economic aid to rehabilitate must receive priority from the United States over demands for a "little Marshall plan" for Latin-America.

He urged the delegates that their first task was to write a strong defense pact as an example to a "sick and suffering world."

Subcommittees meeting in closed sessions already had begun drafting the defense pact before Marshall made his first major address to the conference.

WAR BABIES IN SCHOOL

WITH THE opening of the country's schools only a few weeks away, educational leaders in many parts of the country are faced with a grave shortage of primary teachers. This is not entirely a reflection of the general teacher problem. It is partly a pupil problem.

War marriages resulted in a higher birth rate. These babies have grown up, as babies will, to the point where thousands of them this September will be ready for kindergarten and first grade. Unfortunately the teaching profession did not attract a like increase of candidates.

The result is that there are going to be many crowded school rooms in primary departments. In cities this is a locality emergency. In those sections where there are small homes, the situation will be grave. In areas where childless apartment houses abound or in sections or larger homes where presumably older families reside, the lower grades will be untaxed.

These babies who came into the world at a time of crisis apparently are to find that the results of that war are to accompany them for many years. The crowded kindergartens they will encounter on their first day of school become a symbol of the price paid for a free country. Happily, for a few years anyway, it won't bother them. But it will harass a good many school executives, and overwork many primary teachers.

THE WORST ISM

WHAT ISM is worse than Communism or Fascism? Somnambulism, says Astronomer Harlow Shapley of Harvard, who defines it as "seeming to be awake but actually not."

If this is the test, the world has a lot of somnambulists. Anyone who does not know the dangers presented by the atomic bomb and the necessity of doing something about them, is a somnambulist. Anyone who thinks that because he does not like some current economic developments, they can be cured by simply going back to the good old days, is a somnambulist.

Of course anyone whose party has just lost an election, thinks that the other party is full of somnambulists.

The next war, if there is one, will have more college graduates in it than we've ever dreamed of before, but even they may not save the world.

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

By Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 — If Senators Charles Tobey and Joe McCarthy, a couple of Republicans from New Hampshire and Wisconsin, respectively, can stop arguing about public housing long enough, they ought to drop around and have a talk with Russell Crockett, Washington, D. C., who knows something about their problem.

And Crockett unquestionably wishes they'd do something about his problem. Tobey and McCarthy are members of the joint congressional committee which is to investigate national housing conditions during the current recess. In fact, except when members are bickering over who should be chairman, the group already is probing the shortage.

Tobey wanted to ramrod the outfit, and, under normal rules of precedent, he would have been tagged for the task, due to his seniority and various other considerations. However, the New Englander happens to be one of those solons who strongly favor public housing, and it is probable that his handling of the committee would have hinged heavily on the question of whether more public housing might solve the national shortage.

On the other hand, there are plenty of people in the country who oppose public housing, claiming it is a menace to private industry and several other things too unpleasant to mention. Agreeing with these people, and representing their interests in such legislative debates is Joe McCarthy, freshman-veteran who bounced young Bob LaFollette out of the Wisconsin seat and his father before him had occupied.

Actually less interested in getting it for himself than in keeping Tobey out, McCarthy nevertheless also sought the chairmanship—a somewhat unusual move for a first-year man.

In the resultant melee, McCarthy accomplished his purpose, for Republican representative Ralph Gamble of New York — a man noncommittal on public housing and disinterested in the committee helm—was named the "compromise" chairman. Currently, Tobey is contesting the selection and that's where the matter stands.

But now to return to Russ Crockett and the problems of public housing — which caused all this row in the first place.

Crockett, 32-year-old local Negro who works in the post office department's railway mail service, has a wife and eight kids, and he might well be a good witness for either Tobey or McCarthy.

For more than six years, the Crocketts have lived in a comfortable apartment in the national capital housing authority's Kelly-Miller development here in town, paying $55 a month rent under the regulations for such public housing projects.

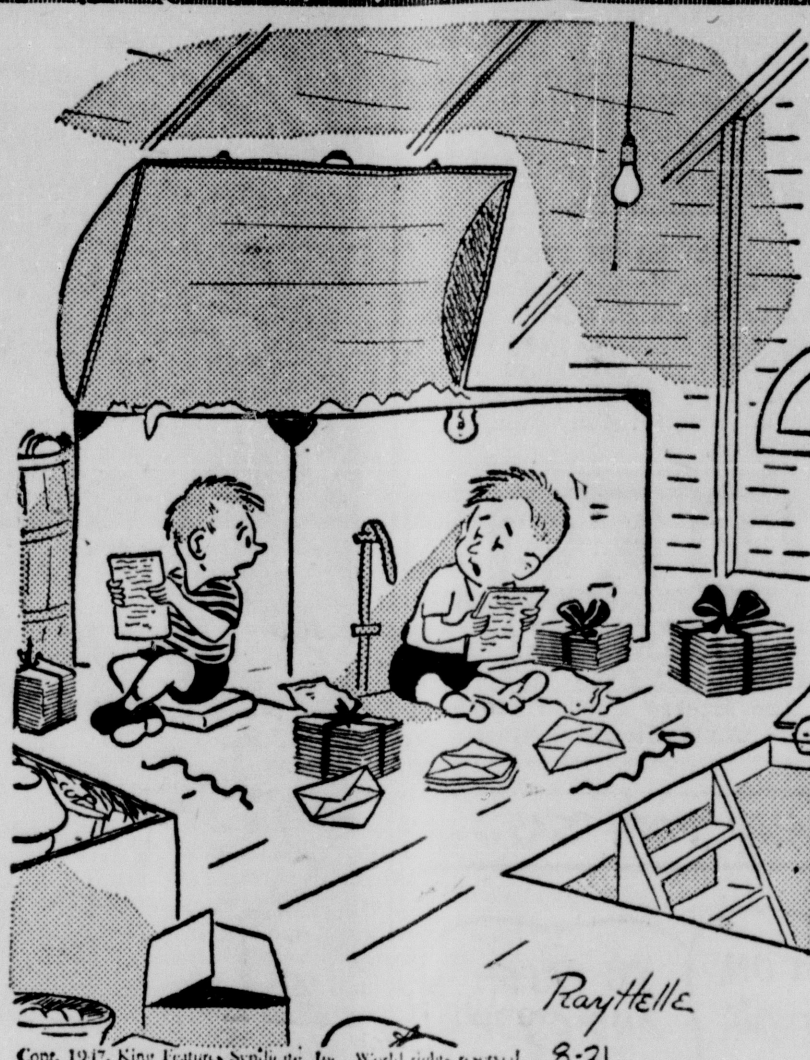

Anyone who knows local rents can tell you, the family certainly has benefited from public housing through the years.

But — comes now the gimmick — at the moment, the Crocketts are facing a crisis. Take the witness, Senator McCarthy!

In October, Russ is due to get a $100 a year raise. True, that isn't a whole lot of dough, but still two bucks a week is two bucks a week with all those hungry mouths to feed. So Crockett's government boss was somewhat surprised the other day when

DIET AND HEALTH

Food Grown in Poor Soil May Cause Deficiency Diseases

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ANY farmer knows that good crops cannot be grown in poor soil. Not so many, however, seem to realize that people eating food grown in worn-out fields will be robbed of health and vigor.

This is an important problem today because much evidence is accumulating to show that deficiency diseases are on the increase. A deficiency disease is a disorder due to lack of something in the body. This includes such disorders as goitre, due to lack of iodine, vitamin deficiencies, and anemia, due to lack of iron-containing foods in the diet.

Deficient in Minerals

Drs. P. H. DeHart and Rufus M. DeHart of Virginia believe that many of these diseases are directly due to the eating of vegetables grown in soil which is deficient in minerals needed for proper development of both man and plants. They point out that deficiency diseases are showing up more and more frequently in plants and warn that it may require a national disaster to shock us into the realization that a people can be no more vigorous than the soil on which they live.

When the minerals in the soil are lacking, the plants grown in this soil will also be deficient; thus men and animals who eat these foods will also suffer from a lack of the minerals. Therefore, poor soils which are lacking in minerals and other substances necessary to sustain life have a direct relation to the health and vigor of the nation.

People may eat plenty of food and still starve if at the same time this food does not supply the necessary food parts.

Thyroid Gland Disorders

Drs. DeHart point out that in certain sections of the country, hospital records show a great increase in thyroid and gland disorders, vitamin deficiencies, nervous disturbances, sterility and other diseases. They also state that there are many abnormal conditions of plants.

due to deficiencies such as chlorosis of tomatoes, due to a deficiency of magnesium.

Every few years, new chemical agents are found to be necessary for plant growth. Magnesium, boron and zinc were found to be needed for plant growth fully twenty years before they became generally utilized.

Diet Low in Iodine

In animals, it has been noted that the birth of hairless pigs has been caused by feeding sows on a diet low in iodine. The lack of manganese in the diet produces inability to secrete breast milk.

Of course, when deficiency diseases appear in human beings, they can be treated by giving them capsules supplying vitamins and minerals. Then, too, the soil can be replenished by the use of various types of fertilizer. It is hoped that these various facts about the relation of the mineral content of the soil to the well-being of the people who live on the soil will be more generally recognized.

We need to be on the alert for the first signs of soil deficiency. These are troublesome times and if we, as a nation, are to meet them successfully, we must maintain our national health and vigor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
N. N.: Will you please tell me something about coronary thrombosis? Will it ever get better?

Answer: Coronary thrombosis means that the coronary arteries which supply the heart muscle with blood have been blocked. This disorder usually comes on suddenly. It may result fatally at once or it may cause an attack of unconsciousness or severe pain, after which the person so afflicted gradually recovers. Just why the arteries harden is not known; overwork and overstrain may be contributing causes. After one recovers from the original attack, he may live a long life if he follows his doctor's advice as to proper living.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

AS HENRIETTA drove toward London, the two phrases echoed through Henrietta's mind: What shall I do? Where shall I go?

For the last few weeks she had been strung up, excited, never relaxing for a moment. She had had a task to perform—a task laid on her by John. But now that that was over—had she failed—or succeeded? One could look at it either way. . . . But however one looked at it, the task was over. And she experienced the terrible weariness of the reaction.

Her mind went back to the words she had spoken to Edward that night on the terrace—the night of John's death—the night when she had gone alone to the pool and into the pavilion and had deliberately, by the light of a match, drawn Ygrasyl upon the iron table. Purposeful, planning—not yet able to sit down and mourn—for her dead. "I should like," she had said to Edward, "to grieve for John."

But she had not dared to relax then—not dared to let sorrow take command over her. . . . But now she could grieve. . . . Now she had all the time there was.

She said under her breath, "John. . . . John."

Bitterness and black rebellion broke over her.

She thought, I wish I'd drunk that cup of tea.

Driving the car soothed her, gave her strength for the moment. But soon she would be in London. Soon she would put the car in the garage and go along to the empty studio. . . . Empty since John would never sit there again bullying her, being angry with her, loving her more than he wanted to love her, telling her eagerly about Ridgeway's disease—about his triumphs and despairs, about Mrs. Crabtree and St. Christopher's.

And suddenly, with a lifting of the dark pall that lay over her mind, she said aloud: "Of course. That's where I will go. To St. Christopher's."

Lying in her narrow hospital bed, old Mrs. Crabtree peered up at her visitor out of rheumy twinkling eyes.

She was exactly as John had described her, and Henrietta felt a sudden warmth, a lifting of the spirit. This was real—this would last! Here, for a little space, she had found John again.

"The pore doctor. Orful, ain't it?" Mrs. Crabtree was saying. There was relish in her voice as well as regret, for Mrs. Crabtree loved life; and sudden deaths, particularly murders or deaths in childbed, were the richest parts of the tapestry of life. "Getting 'imself bumped off like that! Turned my stomach right over, it did, when I 'eard. I read all about it in the papers. Sister let me 'ave all she could get 'old of—reelie about it, she was. There was pictures and everything. . . . That swimming pool, and all. 'Is wife leaving the inquest, pore thing, and as Lady Angkatell what the swimming pool belonged to! Lots of pictures. Real mystery the 'ole thing, weren't it?"

Henrietta was not repelled by her ghoulish enjoyment. She liked it because she knew that John himself would have liked it. If he had to die he would much prefer old Mrs. Crabtree to get a kick out of it, than to sniff and shed tears. "All I 'ope is that they catch 'oover done it and 'ang 'im," continued Mrs. Crabtree vindictively. "They don't 'ave 'angings in public like they used to once—more's the pity. I've always thought I'd like to go to an 'anging. . . . And I'd go double quick, if you understand me, to see 'oover killed the doctor 'anged! Real wicked, 'e must 'ave been. Why, the doctor was one in a thousand! Ever so clever, 'e was! And a nice way with 'im! Got you laughing whether you wanted to or not. The things 'e used to say sometimes! I'd 'ave done anything for the doctor, I would!"

"Yes," said Henrietta. "He was a very clever man. He was a great man."

"Think the world of 'im in the 'ospital, they do! All them nurses. And 'is patients! Always felt you were going to get well when 'e'd been along."

"So you are going to get well," said Henrietta.

The little shrewd eyes clouded for a moment.

"I'm not so sure about that, ducky. I've got that measly-mouthed young fellow with the spectacles now. Quite different to Dr. Christow. Never a laugh! 'E was a one, Dr. Christow was—always up to 'is 'ocks! Given me some awful times, 'e 'as, with this treatment of 'is. I can't stand any more of it, doctor, I'd say to 'im and, 'Yes, you can, Mrs. Crabtree, 'e'd say to me. 'You're tough, you are. You can take it. Going to make medical history, you and I are. And 'e'd jolly me along like. Do anything for the doctor, I would 'ave! Expected a lot of you, 'e did, but you felt you couldn't let 'im down, if you know what I mean."

"I know," said Henrietta.

The little sharp eyes peered at her.

"Excuse me, dearie, you're not the doctor's wife by any chance?"

"No," said Henrietta. "I'm just a friend."

"I see," said Mrs. Crabtree. Henrietta thought that she did see.

"What made you come along, if you don't mind me asking?"

"The doctor used to talk to me a lot about you—and about his new treatment. I wanted to see how you were."

"I'm slipping back—that's what I'm doing."

Henrietta cried:

"But you mustn't slip back! You've got to get well."

Mrs. Crabtree grinned.

"I don't want to peg out, don't you think it?"

"Well, fight then! Dr. Christow said you were a fighter."

"Did 'e now?" Mrs. Crabtree lay still a minute, then she said slowly: "Ooever shot 'im it's a wicked shame! There aren't many of 'is sort. . . ."

We shall not see his like again. . . . the words passed through Henrietta's mind. Mrs. Crabtree was regarding her keenly.

"Keep your pecker up, dearie," she said. She added, "E 'ad a nice funeral, I 'ope."

"He had a lovely funeral," said Henrietta obligingly.

"Ar! Wish I could of gorn to it!" Mrs. Crabtree sighed.

"Be going to me own funeral next, I expect."

"No," cried Henrietta. "You mustn't let go. You said just now that Dr. Christow told you that you and he were going to make medical history. Well, you've got to carry on by yourself. The treatment's just the same. You've got to have the guts for two—you've got to make medical history by yourself—for him."

Mrs. Crabtree looked at her for a moment or two. "Sounds a bit grand! I'll do my best, ducky. Can't say more than that."

Henrietta got up and took her hand.

"Goodby. I'll come and see you again, if I may."

"Yes, do. It'll do me good to talk about the doctor a bit."

The bawdy twinkle came into her eye again. "Proper man in every kind of way, Dr. Christow."

"Yes," said Henrietta. "He was."

The old woman said:

"Don't fret, ducky—what's gorn's gorn. You can't 'ave it back."

Mrs. Crabtree and Hercule Poirot, Henrietta thought, expressed the same idea in different language.

She drove back to Chelsea, put away the car in the garage and walked slowly to the studio.

Now, she thought, it has come. The moment I have been dreading—the moment when I am alone.

Now I can put it off no longer. . . . Now grief is here with me.

What had she said to Edward? "I should like to grieve for John."

She dropped down on a chair and pushed back the hair from her face.

Alone—empty—deserted.

This awful emptiness.

The tears pricked at her eyes, flowed slowly down her cheeks.

Grief, she thought, grief for John.

Oh, John—John.

Remembering. . . remembering. His voice, sharp with pain:

If I were dead, the first thing you'd do, with the tears streaming down your face, would be to start modeling some darned mourning woman or some figure of grief.

She stirred uneasily. . . . Why had that thought come into her head?

Grief. . . . Grief. . . . A veiled figure. . . . It's outline barely perceptible—its head bowed.

Alabaster.

She could see the lines of it—tall, elongated. . . . its sorrow hidden, revealed only by the long mournful lines of the drapery.

Sorrow, emerging from clear transparent alabaster.

If I were dead.

And suddenly bitterness came over her full tide: That's what I am! John was right. I cannot love—I cannot mourn—not with the whole of me. . . . It's Midge, it's people like Midge who are the salt of the earth.

Midge and Edward at Ainswick. That was reality—strength—warmth.

But I, she thought, am not a whole person. I belong not to myself, but to something outside me. I cannot grieve for my dead.

Instead, I must make my grief and make it into a figure of alabaster.

"Exhibit N. 58 Grief, Alabaster. Miss Henrietta Savernake."

She said under her breath:

"John, forgive me. . . . forgive me. . . . for what I can't help doing."

witching and he had nothing to lose. Anyway, he had to have water and was willing to try anything. So, he called on Sherman Dowden. Sherman started in at the barn, walked less than 100 feet from the salt water well. The peach twig diviner he was carrying turned downward. Sherman marked the spot and said, "Drill here." Harold did and 40 feet down struck water that is plentiful, more than 300 gallons an hour. Now, do you believe? Go out and look at it. The two wells are there.

Stood about half of the afternoon and shortly after the printers called it a day so did I and headed for the country. Straightway to the basement where did camp in front of fan and called upstairs for someone to toss down a can of brew. It came, but did not live up to hopes and was soon abandoned for icewater. Remained below until dinner call and then up to a cold meal, everything iced as ordered. Helped some but not much. Ventured into the yard after sundown and there remained until a late hour when I bedded down—on the front porch glider, mosquitoes and all.

I'm telling you something, weather fellow. You are making yourself mighty unpopular!

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

By Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 — If Senators Charles Tobey and Joe McCarthy, a couple of Republicans from New Hampshire and Wisconsin, respectively, can stop arguing about public housing long enough, they ought to drop around and have a talk with Russell Crockett, Washington, D. C., who knows something about their problem.

And Crockett unquestionably wishes they'd do something about his problem.

Tobey and McCarthy are members of the joint congressional committee which is to investigate national housing conditions during the current recess. In fact, except when members are bickering over who should be chairman, the group already is probing the shortage.

Tobey wanted to ramrod the outfit, and, under normal rules of precedent, he would have been tagged for the task, due to his seniority and various other considerations.

However, the New Englander happens to be one of those solons who strongly favor public housing, and it is probable that his handling of the committee would have hinged heavily on the question of whether more public housing might solve the national shortage.

On the other hand, there are plenty of people in the country who oppose public housing, claiming it is a menace to private industry and several other things too unpleasant to mention. Agreeing with these people, and representing their interests in such legislative debates is Joe McCarthy, freshman-veteran who bounced young Bob LaFollette out of the Wisconsin seat he and his father before him had occupied.

Actually less interested in getting it for himself than in keeping Tobey out, McCarthy nevertheless also sought the chairmanship—a somewhat unusual move for a first-year man.

In the resultant melee, McCarthy accomplished his purpose, for Republican representative Ralph Gamble of New York—a man noncommittal on public housing and disinterested in the committee helm—was named the "compromise" chairman. Currently, Tobey is contesting the selection and that's where the matter stands.

But now to return to Russ Crockett and the problems of public housing—which caused all this row in the first place.

Crockett, 32-year-old local Negro who works in the post office department's railway mail service, has a wife and eight kids, and he might well be a good witness for either Tobey or McCarthy.

For more than six years, the Crocketts have lived in a comfortable apartment in the national capital housing authority's Kelly-Miller development here in town, paying $55 a month rent under the regulations for such public housing projects.

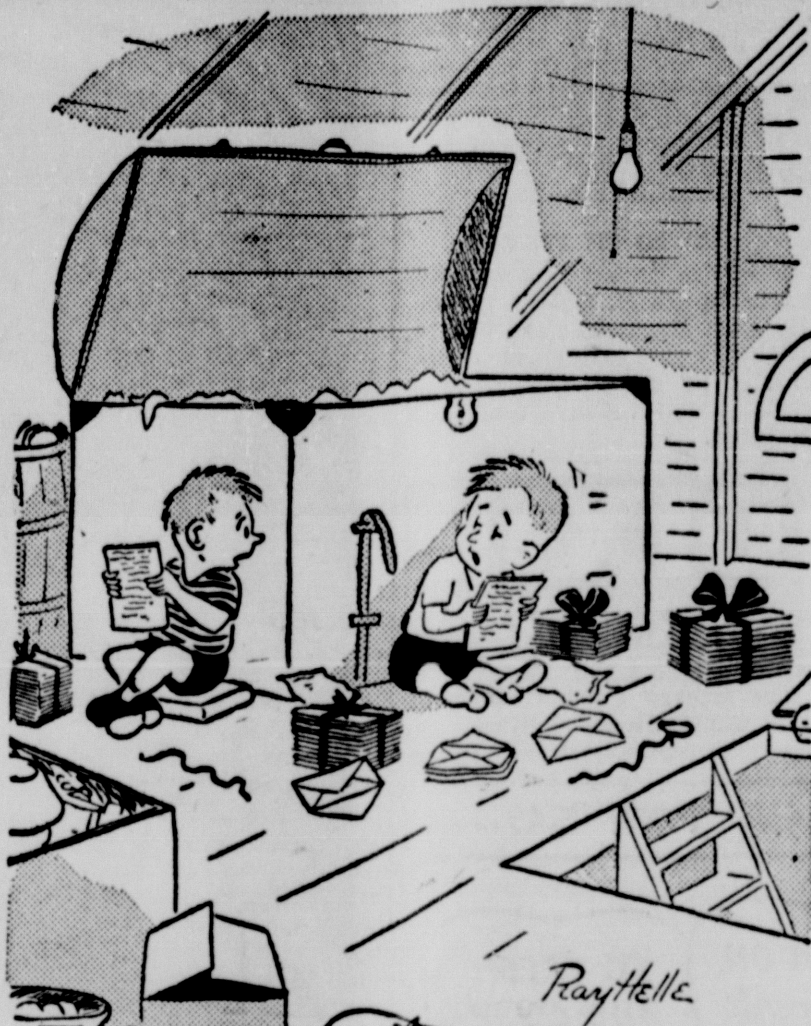

Anyone who knows local rents can tell you, the family certainly has benefited from public housing through the years.

But—comes now the gimmick—at the moment, the Crocketts are facing a crisis. Take the witness, Senator McCarthy!

In October, Russ is due to get a $100 a year raise. True, that isn't a whole lot of dough, but still two bucks a week is two bucks a week with all those hungry mouths to feed. So Crockett's government boss was somewhat surprised the other day when

Food Grown in Poor Soil May Cause Deficiency Diseases

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ANY farmer knows that good crops cannot be grown in poor soil. Not so many, however, seem to realize that people eating food grown in worn-out fields will be robbed of health and vigor.

This is an important problem to-day because much evidence is accumulating to show that deficiency diseases are on the increase. A deficiency disease is a disorder due to lack of something in the body. This includes such disorders as goiter, due to lack of iodine, vitamin deficiencies, and anemia, due to lack of iron-containing foods in the diet.

Deficient in Minerals

Drs. P. H. DeHart and Rufus M. DeHart of Virginia believe that many of these diseases are directly due to the eating of vegetables grown in soil which is deficient in minerals needed for proper development of both man and plants. They point out that deficiency diseases are showing up more and more frequently in plants and warn that it may require a national disaster to shock us into the realization that a people can be no more vigorous than the soil on which they live.

When the minerals in the soil are lacking, the plants grown in this soil will also be deficient; thus men and animals who eat these foods will also suffer from a lack of the minerals. Therefore, poor soils which are lacking in minerals and other substances necessary to sustain life have a direct relation to the health and vigor of the nation.

People may eat plenty of food and still starve if at the same time this food does not supply the necessary food parts.

Thyroid Gland Disorders

Drs. DeHart point out that in certain sections of the country, hospital records show a great increase in thyroid and gland disorders, vitamin deficiencies, nervous disturbances, sterility and other diseases.

They also state that there are many abnormal conditions of plants.

Lawrence E. Goeller, Beverly road, is enroute to Miami Beach, Florida, where he will be enrolled as a captain in the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Ladies of the Williamsport Methodist Episcopal church, will serve one of their famous dollar's worth of chicken dis-due to deficiencies such as chlorosis of tomatoes, due to a deficiency of magnesium.

Every few years, new chemical agents are found to be necessary for plant growth. Magnesium, boron and zinc were found to be needed for plant growth fully twenty years before they became generally utilized.

Diet Low in Iodine

In animals, it has been noted that the birth of hairless pigs has been caused by feeding sows on a diet low in iodine. The lack of manganese in the diet produces inability to secrete breast milk.

Of course, when deficiency diseases appear in human beings, they can be treated by giving them capsules supplying vitamins and minerals. Then, too, the soil can be replenished by the use of various types of fertilizer. It is hoped that these various facts about the relation of the mineral content of the soil to the well-being of the people who live on the soil will be more generally recognized.

We need to be on the alert for the first signs of soil deficiency. These are troublous times and if we, as a nation, are to meet them successfully, we must maintain our national health and vigor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. N.: Will you please tell me something about coronary thrombosis? Will it ever get better?

Answer: Coronary thrombosis means that the coronary arteries which supply the heart muscle with blood have been blocked. This disorder usually comes on suddenly. It may result fatally at once or it may cause an attack of unconsciousness or severe pain, after which the person so afflicted gradually recovers. Just why the arteries harden is not known; overwork and overstrain may be contributing causes. After one recovers from the original attack, he may live a long life if he follows his doctor's advice as to proper living.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

AS HENRIETTA drove toward London, the two phrases echoed through Henrietta's mind: What shall I do? Where shall I go?

For the last few weeks she had been strung up, excited, never relaxing for a moment. She had had a task to perform—a task laid on her by John. But now that that was over—had she failed—or succeeded? One could look at it either way. . . . But however one looked at it, the task was over. And she experienced the terrible weariness of the reaction.

Her mind went back to the words she had spoken to Edward that night on the terrace—the night when she had gone alone to the pool and into the pavilion and had deliberately, by the light of a match, drawn a dagger upon the iron table. Purposeful, planning—not yet able to sit down and mourn—mourn for her dead. "I should like," she had said to Edward, "to grieve for John."

But she had not dared to relax then—not dared to let sorrow take command over her.

But now she could grieve. . . . Now she had all the time there was.

She said under her breath, "John . . . John."

"Bitterness and black rebellion broke over her."

Driving the car soothed her, gave her strength for the moment. But soon she would be in London. Soon she would put the car in the garage and go along to the empty studio. . . . Empty since John would never sit there again bullying her, being angry with her, loving her more than he wanted to love her, telling her eagerly about Ridgeway's disease—about his triumphs and despair, about Mrs. Crabtree and St. Christopher's.

And suddenly, with a lifting of the dark pall that lay over her mind, she said aloud:

"Of course, that's where I will go. To St. Christopher's."

Lying in her narrow hospital bed, old Mrs. Crabtree peered up at her visitor out of rheumy twinkling eyes.

She was exactly as John had described her, and Henrietta felt a sudden warmth, a lifting of the spirit. This was real—this would last! Here, for a little space, she had found John again.

"The pore doctor. Orful, ain't it?" Mrs. Crabtree was saying. There was relief in her voice as well as regret, for Mrs. Crabtree loved life; and sudden deaths, particularly murders or deaths in childhood, were the richest parts of the tapestry of life. "Getting 'imself bumped off like that! Turned my stomach right over, it did, when I heard I read all about it in the papers. Sister let me 'ave all she could get 'old of—really nice about it, she was. There was pictures and everything. . . . That swimming pool, and all. 'Is wife leaving the inquest, pore thing, and that Lady Angkatell what the swimming pool belonged to! Lots of pictures. Real mystery the 'ole thing, weren't it?"

Henrietta was not repelled by her ghoulish enjoyment. She liked it because she knew that John himself would have liked it. If he had to die he would much prefer old Mrs. Crabtree to get a kick out of it, than to sniff and shed tears. "All I 'ope is that they catch 'oever done it and 'ang 'im," continued Mrs. Crabtree vindictively. "They don't 'ave 'angings in public like they used to once—more's the pity. I've always thought I'd like to go to an 'anging. . . . And I'd go double quick, if you understand me, to see 'oever killed the doctor 'anged! Real wicked, 'e must 'ave been. Why, the doctor was 'ave in a thousand! Ever so clever, 'e was! And a nice way with 'im! Got you laughing whether you wanted to or not. The things 'e used to say sometimes! I'd 'ave done anything for the doctor, I would!"

"Yes," said Henrietta. "He was a very clever man. He was a great man."

"Think the world of 'im in the 'ospital, they do! All them nurses. And 'is patient! Always felt you were going to get well when 'e'd been along."

"So you are going to get well," said Henrietta.

The little shrewd eyes clouded for a moment.

"I'm not so sure about that, ducky. I've got that mealy-mouthed young fellow with the spectacles now. Quite different to Dr. Christow. Never a laugh! 'E was a one."

Dr. Christow was—always up to 'is 'ocks! Given me some awful times, 'e 'as, with this treatment of 'is. I can't stand any more of 'is, doctor! I'd say to 'im and, 'Yes, you can, Mrs. Crabtree,' 'e'd say to me. 'You're tough, you are. You can take it. Going to make medical 'istory, you and I are. And 'e'd jolly me along like. Do anything for the doctor, I would 'ave! Expected a lot of you, 'e did, but you felt you couldn't let 'im down, if you know what I mean."

"I know," said Henrietta.

The little sharp eyes peered at her.

"Excuse me, dearie, you're not the doctor's wife by any chance?"

"No," said Henrietta. "I'm just a friend."

"I see," said Mrs. Crabtree. Henrietta thought that she did see.

"What made you come along, if you don't mind me asking?"

"The doctor used to talk to me a lot about you—and about his new treatment. I wanted to see how you were."

"I'm slipping back—that's what I'm doing."

Henrietta cried:

"But you mustn't slip back! You've got to get well!"

Mrs. Crabtree grinned.

"I don't want to peg out, don't you think it?"

"Well, fight then! Dr. Christow said you were a fighter."

"Did 'e now?" Mrs. Crabtree lay still a minute, then she said slowly:

"'Oever shot 'im it's a wicked shame! There aren't many of 'is sort. . . ."

We shall not see his like again. . . . the words passed through Henrietta's mind. Mrs. Crabtree was regarding her keenly.

"Keep your pecker up, dearie," she said. She added, "E'd a nice funeral, I 'ope."

"He had a lovely funeral," said Henrietta obligingly.

"Ar! Wish I could of gorn to it!" Mrs. Crabtree sighed.

"Be going to me own funeral next, I expect."

"No," cried Henrietta. "You mustn't let go. You said just now that Dr. Christow told you that you and he were going to make medical history. Well, you've got to carry on by yourself. The treatment's just the same. You've got to have the guts for two—you've got to make medical history by yourself—for him."

Mrs. Crabtree looked at her for a moment or two.

"Sounds a bit grand! I'll do my best, ducky. Can't say more than that."

Henrietta got up and took her hand.

"Goodbye. I'll come and see you again, if I may."

"Yes, do. It'll do me good to talk about the doctor a bit." The bawdy twinkle came into her eye again. "Proper man in every kind of way, Dr. Christow."

"Yes," said Henrietta. "He was."

The old woman said:

"Don't fret, ducky—what's gorn's gorn. You can't 'ave it back."

Mrs. Crabtree and Hercule Poirot, Henrietta thought, expressed the same idea in different language.

She drove back to Chelsea, put away the car in the garage and walked slowly to the studio.

Now, she thought, it has come. The moment I have been dreading—the moment when I am alone.

Now I can put it off no longer. . . . Now grief is here with me.

What had she said to Edward? "I should like to grieve for John."

She dropped down on a chair and pushed back the hair from her face.

Alone—empty—desolate.

This awful emptiness.

The tears pricked at her eyes, flowed slowly down her cheeks.

Grief, she thought, grief for John.

Oh, John—John.

Remembering. . . remembering. His voice, sharp with pain:

"If I were dead, the first thing you'd do, with the tears streaming down your face, would be to start modeling some damned mourning woman or some figure of grief. She stirred uneasily. . . . Why had that thought come into her head?

Grief. . . . Grief. . . . A veiled figure. . . . It's outline barely perceptible—its head bowed.

Alabaster.

She could see the lines of it—tall, elongated. . . . its sorrow hidden, revealed only by the long mournful lines of the drapery.

Sorrow, emerging from clear transparent Alabaster.

If I were dead.

And suddenly bitterness came over her full tide!

She thought, That's what I am! John was right. I cannot love—I cannot mourn—not with the whole of me. . . . It's Midge, it's people like Midge who are the salt of the earth.

Midge and Edward at Ainswick. That was reality—strength—warmth.

But I, she thought, am not a whole person. I belong not to myself, but to something outside me. I cannot grieve for my dead.

Nuptial Mass Read In St. Joseph's Church

Four attendants attired in gowns of brocaded satin preceded Miss Katherine Marie Blubaugh, to the altar of St. Joseph's Catholic church on Wednesday morning for her wedding to William J. Goode Jr. The Rev. Father Edward J. Reidy officiated at the nuptial mass as the hands of the clock pointed upward from half after nine o'clock.

The bride is a daughter of John A. Blubaugh, South Pickaway street, and the late Mrs. Blubaugh. Mr. Goode is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Goode, Sr. route 4.

High mass was celebrated at a candle-lit altar adorned in greenery and white gladioli.

Escorted by her father, the bride approached the altar in a formal gown of white dutchess satin, fashioned with a high neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a fitted bodice ending in a peplum effect. The full sweeping skirt extended into a long train. Her full veil of illusion was held in place by a halo of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a pearl rosary and wore a strand of pearls a gift from the bridegroom. For something old she carried her mother's white satin prayer book topped with a corsage of white rose buds.

The attendants gowns were fashioned similar to the brides. Theirs were made of brocaded satin, with short sleeves and a peplum. Each wore matching mits and carried old fashioned nosegays. Their headresses were braided tiaras, and they wore the bride's gift of pearl earrings.

Mrs. Clarence Shults, Danville, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor in a gown of pale blue. Mrs. John R. Blubaugh, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Agnes Goode, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Louise Neff, Columbus, bridesmaids, wore identical frocks of pink.

Joseph Kennedy, Columbus, attended his cousin as best man. Leading the guests were Otto J. Blubaugh, Columbus, and Carl Blubaugh, Middletown, brothers of the bride. Raymond, Jerry, David and Jack Goode, brothers of the bridegroom served as acolytes.

Miss Teresa Blubaugh, sister of the bride, and Mrs. George Groom, organist, presented a period of pre-nuptial music. Miss Blubaugh sang, Rosewig's "Ave Marie" and "On This Day".

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father, for members of the wedding party and immediate relatives. The bride's table was centered with a large tiered wedding cake flanked by tall white tapers.

During the afternoon a reception was held in St. Joseph's Recreation center between the hours of two and four o'clock. Refreshments were served buffet style from a table decorated in pink and white Summer garden flowers and candelabra bearing pink tapers. Many candles cast a soft glow over the room.

Mrs. Goode selected for her son's wedding a navy blue sheer print dress with accessories of navy blue. She wore a corsage of pink asters and carnations.

For her wedding trip the bride changed to a rose print frock with black accessories. She pinned at her lapel the white rose bud corsage from her prayer book. After a motor trip through the North-East, the new Mr. and Mrs. Goode will temporarily make their home in Lancaster.

The new Mrs. Goode was graduated from Danville high school and has been associated with Smith's Apparel Incorporated, Circleville. She is affiliated with Beta Sigma Phi, international sorority. Mr. Goode was graduated from Washington township school. He served four years with the Air Corps during World War II and now is engaged in farming in Washington township. In March of 1948 they will make their home in Washington township.

Out of town guests at the wedding and reception were, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shults, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Blubaugh, Danville, Mr. and Mrs. A. Durbin, Mt. Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. John R. Florence, Delaware; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foeller, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Kennedy, Mrs. Owen Meehan and Mrs. James T. Kennedy, Columbus.

P. H. Butts, Danville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattingly, Lockbourne; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dawson, Mrs. Joseph Shuman, Mrs. R. Robinson, and Mrs. Helen Landis, Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Earl Raasch, Texarkana, Texas; Mrs. Melvin Heggins, Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Carl Blanchard and Mrs. Louis Gardner, Danville, and Mrs. Jack Hunt, Gambier.

Katherine Blubaugh, William J. Goode Wed

Nuptial Mass Read In St. Joseph's Church

Four attendants attired in gowns of brocaded satin preceded Miss Katherine Marie Blubaugh, to the altar of St. Joseph's Catholic church on Wednesday morning for her wedding to William J. Goode Jr. The Rev. Father Edward J. Reidy officiated at the nuptial high mass as the hands of the clock pointed upward from half after nine o'clock.

The bride is a daughter of John A. Blubaugh, South Pickaway street, and the late Mrs. Blubaugh. Mr. Goode is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Goode, Sr. route 4.

High mass was celebrated at a candle-lit altar adorned in greenery and white gladioli.

Escorted by her father, the bride approached the altar in a formal gown of white dutchess satin, fashioned with a high neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a fitted bodice ending in a peplum effect. The full sweeping skirt extended into a long train. Her full veil of illusion was held in place by a halo of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a pearl rosary and wore a strand of pearls a gift from the bridegroom. For something old she carried her mother's white satin prayer book topped with a corsage of white rose buds.

The attendants gowns were fashioned similar to the brides. Theirs were made of brocaded satin, with short sleeves and a peplum. Each wore matching mitts and carried old fashioned nosegays. Their headresses were braided tiaras, and they wore the bride's gift of pearl earrings.

Mrs. Clarence Shults, Danville, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor in a gown of pale blue. Mrs. John R. Blubaugh, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Agnes Goode, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Louise Neff, Columbus, bridesmaids, wore identical frocks of pink.

Joseph Kennedy, Columbus, attended his cousin as best man. Seating the guests were Otto J. Blubaugh, Columbus, and Carl Blubaugh, Middletown, brothers of the bride, Raymond, Jerry, David and Jack Goode, brothers of the bridegroom served as acolytes.

Miss Teresa Blubaugh, sister of the bride, and Mrs. George Groom, organist, presented a period of pre-nuptial music. Miss Blubaugh sang, Rosewig's "Ave Marie" and "On This Day". Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father, for members of the wedding party and immediate relatives. The bride's table was centered with a large tiered wedding cake flanked by tall white tapers.

During the afternoon a reception was held in St. Joseph's Recreation center between the hours of two and four o'clock. Refreshments were served buffet style from a table decorated in pink and white Summer garden flowers and candelabra bearing pink tapers. Many candles cast a soft glow over the room.

Mrs. Goode selected for her son's wedding a navy blue sheer print dress with accessories of navy blue. She wore a corsage of pink asters and carnations.

For her wedding trip the bride changed to a rose print frock with black accessories. She pinned at her lapel the white rose bud corsage from her prayer book. After a motor trip through the North-East, the new Mr. and Mrs. Goode will temporarily make their home in Lancaster.

The new Mrs. Goode was graduated from Danville high school and has been associated with Smith's Apparel Incorporated, Circleville. She is affiliated with Beta Sigma Phi, international sorority. Mr. Goode was graduated from Washington township school. He served four years with the Air Corps during World War II and now is engaged in farming in Washington township. In March of 1948 they will make their home in Washington township.

Out of town guests at the wedding and reception were, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shults, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Blubaugh, Danville, Mr. and Mrs. A. Durbin, Mt. Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. John R. Florence, Delaware; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foeller, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Kennedy, Mrs. Owen Meehan and Mrs. James T. Kennedy, Columbus.

P. H. Butts, Danville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattingly, Lockbourne; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dawson, Mrs. Joseph Shuman, Mrs. R. Robinson, and Mrs. Helen Landis, Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Earl Raasch, Texarkana, Texas; Mrs. Melvin Heggins, Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Carl Blanchard and Mrs. Louis Gardner, Danville, and Mrs. Jack Hunt, Gambier.

Jews Off 'Exodus' Told To
Return To France
From Warships

LONDON, Aug. 21—Britain warned today that the 4,000 Jewish immigrants from the "Exodus 1947" will be shipped to Germany if they do not begin leaving three British transports off Port de Bouc, France, by 6 p. m. tomorrow.

A statement of the foreign office said that inasmuch as it is clearly impossible to leave the three British transports in French waters indefinitely they will "sail for the British zone of Germany where the passengers will be immediately disembarked."

THE IMMIGRANTS, seized last month off the coast of Palestine aboard the steamer "Exodus 1947," were returned to Port de Bouc, their point of origin.

They have steadfastly refused to quit the transports despite official French assurances of sanctuary.

The foreign office statement pointed out that the British zone of Germany is the only territory under Britain's jurisdiction where such a large number can be adequately fed and housed on short notice.

The foreign office said only 130 passengers disembarked during the three weeks that the transports have been at Port de Bouc. A number of these were ill.

Most of the Jews aboard the transports are Poles.

Their vessel left for Palestine on July 11 but was shadowed throughout most of the journey by British warships and easily apprehended.

Belgium's largest mineral production is coal, of which over 25,000,000 tons are produced each year.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as howels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 60 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BRITISH WAR N REFUGEES MAY GO TO GERMANY

Jews Off 'Exodus' Told To
Return To France
From Warships

LONDON, Aug. 21—Britain warned today that the 4,000 Jewish immigrants from the "Exodus 1947" will be shipped to Germany if they do not begin leaving three British transports off Port de Bouc, France, by 6 p. m. tomorrow.

A statement of the foreign office said that inasmuch as it is clearly impossible to leave the three British transports in French waters indefinitely they will "sail for the British zone of Germany where the passengers will be immediately disembarked."

THE IMMIGRANTS, seized last month off the coast of Palestine aboard the steamer "Exodus 1947," were returned to Port de Bouc, their point of origin.

They have steadfastly refused to quit the transports despite official French assurances of sanctuary.

The foreign office statement pointed out that the British zone of Germany is the only territory under Britain's jurisdiction where such a large number can be adequately fed and housed on short notice.

The foreign office said only 130 passengers disembarked during the three weeks that the transports have been at Port de Bouc. A number of these were ill.

Most of the Jews aboard the transports are Poles.

Their vessel left for Palestine on July 11 but was shadowed throughout most of the journey by British warships and easily apprehended.

Belgium's largest mineral production is coal, of which over 25,000,000 tons are produced each year.

ATLANTA

Atlanta Silver Thimble Club met at the school Wednesday, for the purpose of having projects graded. The club started this year with 22 members and is finishing with the same number. Each member has completed her project. The Atlanta community can be very proud of their 4-H girls for their work this year. Eight girls are making cotton dresses; and three of them are old enough to enter their dresses at the State Fair. Patty Hamman made a tailored suit, and is going to model it at the Ohio State Fair.

The club went on a tour to the Columbus Zoo last Thursday. After picnic dinner, girls went to the park, where they started a few rides just for the group. Rain began about 2 o'clock, and members spent tickets on the merry-go-round and dodgem rides. In addition to club advisors, Mrs. Warren Hobbie and Mrs. Harvey Patterson, those who accompanied members on the school bus were Miss Jacqueline Osborn, Midland; Johnny Farmer, Mr. Hobbie, Mrs. Dennis Lamb, Mrs. Homer Long and son Darrell, Mrs. Malcolm Wilkins and daughter Jeanie, and Miss Judy Patterson.

The following group gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Donohoe and daughter Portia, last Thursday evening, to surprise Mr. Donohoe on his birthday anniversary: Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Briggs and daughter Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bryant and family and Charles Bryant, New Holland; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Weidinger, Good Hope; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Arnold, Mary and Chuck Chapman, and Miss Joan McCormick, Clarkburg; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Donohoe, Washington C. H.

Prize winners of contests were Charles Bryant, Mrs. Weidinger and Mrs. Arnold. The hostess served refreshments of home-made ice cream and cake.

Mrs. Seymour Thomas, New Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sheppard and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Binns attended the Thomas-Van-Burkirk reunion Sunday at Ted Lewis Park, Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Eckle, Washington C. H., were dinner guests Friday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drake and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Erceel Wright enjoyed a motor trip Sunday through Southern Ohio and Kentucky. At the roadside they picnicked at a roadside park.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Groves were weekend visitors in Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Allamang were among those who attended a Grange picnic and outing, held last Friday at the Columbus Zoo.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper and Mrs. Mary Cooper, Washington C. H., were dinner guests Thursday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graves and family.

USAF EXPECTED TO DOMINATE RACES AGAIN

New Records Expected As Pilots Compete In New Type Planes

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21—The United States Air Force again is expected to dominate the national air races, to be held at Cleveland Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

In its first public appearance as a separate arm of the nation's military might, the USAF will top each day's program with a mighty aerial parade, featuring giant B-29's, sleek P-80 Shooting Stars and sturdy A-26 attack bombers.

Of greater interest, however, are the races scheduled for the jets on each day of the races. Four P-80's will compete in the jet division of the 2,048-mile Bendix derby from Los Angeles to Cleveland; six will compete in the 500-mile Allison trophy cross-country race from Cleveland to Indianapolis and return, and six more will shoot for the closed-course record on Labor Day in the jet division of the Thompson trophy race.

Capt. Leon Gray set a record of 494 miles an hour in the jet division of the Bendix last year. The closed-course record is 515 miles an hour, set by Maj. Gus Lundquist in winning the Thompson jet race.

In Muroc, Cal., yesterday, Comdr. Turner F. Caldwell, flying a Navy jet-propelled D-558, set a new international air speed record of 640.7 miles per hour.

Civilian pilots will be back in greater numbers than ever before and might well regain some of the glory they held in earlier races. And for the first time since before the war, completely new and original racing planes have been built for the show.

An idea of the compactness of this year's races can be had by comparing the program with last year's event. Only five races were run over a four-day period in 1946 while 15 races have been scheduled for the three-day running this year.

Russ came into the office and asked not to be given the raise!

Why? It's simple. Public housing regulations reserve such apartments as the one occupied by the Crocketts for families with an annual income of $3,000 or less. And Crockett's present salary is exactly that.

Government regulations insist that the raise must be given, yet if Russ gets the raise, his family must move—under government regulations!

And the Crocketts need no crystal-gazer to tell them that in the private real estate and rental market, it would cost them nearly twice $55 a month to duplicate their present apartment.

So there, Messrs. Tobey and McCarthy, are the ingredients for plenty of public housing arguments—on either side of the fence.

No question but that the Crocketts have benefited from public housing in the past—and seemingly no way to save them from suffering under its rules in the future. And there are other angles.

Meanwhile, Russ Crockett epitomizes the plight of thousands of American citizens whose housing problems you are supposed to probe.

ARMED WINS $43,750 AT WHIRLAWAY STAKES

CHICAGO, Aug. 21—Horse fans predicted today that the forthcoming $100,000 winner-take-all match race between Assault and Armed at Washington Park may be one of the greatest racing spectacles of all time.

Armed showed his heels to With Pleasure by a half length and clipped four-fifths of a second off the track record for the mile and one-eighth yesterday in winning the $43,750 Whirlaway stakes. It was his ninth track record.

MUMAW MARKET
WINS 7-4 OVER
ISALY'S TEAM
Richards Bows To All Stars
After 740 AC Fails To Appear For Game

Mumaw's Market scored a 7-4 victory over Isaly's in a Night
Softball league tournament game Wednesday night at Ted Lewis park.

Isaly's outfit the Grocers but several errors helped Mumaw's.
Dick Wellington held the winners to six hits while he and his mates were getting 10 off Dick Hudson and Willis Conley.

Mumaw's scored three times in the second inning, twice in the third, once in the fifth and sixth. All the Isaly runs came in a big fourth inning.

IN THE SECOND game Richards Implement played a pickup team, composed of Mumaw, Isaly and Blue Ribbon players.
The 740 AC team, scheduled to meet the district champions, did not appear, cancelling the game late in the afternoon. The management had assured Richards
Wednesday morning the team would be here for the game but sent a telegram of cancellation late in the day.

Willis Conley and Pug Fowler pitched for the "All Stars" and defeated Richards 6-3. The champs got seven hits off Todd McKinney.

Tonight Drake's Produce and Tarlton play a tournament game at 8 o'clock. Friday night Williamsport and Blue Ribbon are scheduled to play a game that will wind up the first round of the revamped tournament.

With New York in the midst of a sweltering heat wave, radio stars in Gotham reach deep into their bag of cooling-off tricks. Maestro Paul Lavalle swears by hot drinks which he contends have a more lasting cooling effect than iced drinks. Abbott and Costello spurn this theory and drink iced lemonade all day long. Jay Jostyn (Mr. District Attorney) relaxes in an easy chair five minutes out of each hour to permit his body to cool off. Ginny Simms gets into her roadster and drives with the top down. Perry Como, like most of us, just mops his brow.

ABC will present September 8, a full hour documentary program, "1960?? Jiminy Cricket," forecasting America after the next decade of human endeavor. Walt Disney characters, music, drama, and fantasy will be employed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BUILD SQUEEZE FORMAT
IN THE making of a contract that requires a squeeze play, the declarer often is utterly unable to tell that his effort will pan out. He may not have an accurate enough reading of the opposing cards to know that a particular member of the defending pair has the job of protecting his side against both of the suits involved. Maybe one defender can guard one suit and his partner the other, in which event the squeeze try fails. But if the declarer knows his squeeze formats and builds one of them at the crucial stage, he at least gives himself a chance to have the squeeze succeed.

East 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 4 NT Pass
South 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 4 NT Pass
West 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 4 NT Pass

The Blackwood response having told him North had the diamond A, South reckoned North probably held at least six spades to the K-Q in order to open the bidding and rebid the suit, since he himself had the A-J. As he was shooting for a top in the pair duplicate, he decided to chance a No Trump grand slam instead of the easier one in spades. After West led the unreadable club 9, he saw that all grand slamblers would have to find the heart K with East. If that was the case, the spade slam would be a cinch by ruffing one diamond, and discarding the heart 9 on a club. But he, in No Trump, could not ruff, so had to try a squeeze.

Winning the club lead with the A, he led a spade to dummy and brought out the heart Q, which East covered. The A won, then he led to the diamond A, scored the heart J and ran his spades. He had figured out a squeeze format whereby he left the club K-Q-4 and heart 8 in his own hand and the final spade plus one card each of the other suits in the dummy.

With that setup, if the defender with four clubs originally also held the heart 10, the squeeze with the final spade would work when South discarded the heart 8 from his own hand--regardless of which defender was being harassed. It happened that East, with the heart 10, also had the club length and discarded one of the suit. When the heart 10 failed to appear on that trick, South then led to his clubs and scored all three of them.

With New York in the midst of a sweltering heat wave, radio stars in Gotham reach deep into their bag of cooling-off tricks. Maestro Paul Lavalie swears by hot drinks which he contends have a more lasting cooling effect than iced drinks. Abbott and Costello spurn this theory and drink iced lemonade all day long. Jay Jostyn (Mr. District Attorney) relaxes in an easy chair five minutes out of each hour to permit his body to cool off. Ginny Simms gets into her roadster and drives with the top down. Perry Como, like most of us, just mops his brow.

ABC will present September 8, a full hour documentary program, "1960? Jiminy Cricket," forecasting America after the next decade of human endeavor. Walt Disney characters, music, drama, and fantasy will be employed.

The thrilling mid-summer grid classic of the year, the annual College All-Stars football game, will be exclusively presented over the Mutual Network Friday, August 22, from 9:30 p. m. EST, to game completion. This year the All-Stars face the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Professional football league. Harold "Red" Grange, the "Galloping Ghost" of the gridiron, will analyze the plays and do the "color" for the MBS broadcast, while sports personality Harry Wismer will handle the play-by-play.

Blondie and Dagwood, starred on CBS Sunday nights, were discussing accidents. "A large percentage of accidents," noted

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BUILD SQUEEZE FORMAT

IN THE making of a contract that requires a squeeze play, the declarer often is utterly unable to tell that his effort will pan out. He may not have an accurate enough reading of the opposing cards to know that a particular member of the defending pair has the job of protecting his side against both of the suits involved. Maybe one defender can guard one suit and his partner the other, in which event the squeeze try fails. But if the declarer knows his squeeze formats and builds one of them at the crucial stage, he at least gives himself a chance to have the squeeze succeed.

5 ♠ Pass 7 NT Pass

The Blackwood response having told him North had the diamond A, South reckoned North probably held at least six spades to the K-Q in order to open the bidding and rebid the suit, since he himself had the A-J. As he was shooting for a top in the pair duplicate, he decided to chance a No Trump grand slam instead of the easier one in spades. After West led the unreadable club 9, he saw that all grand slamers would have to find the heart K with East. If that was the case, the spade slam would be a cinch by ruffing one diamond, and discarding the heart 9 on a club. But he, in No Trump, could not ruff, so had to try a squeeze.

Winning the club lead with the A, he led a spade to dummy and brought out the heart Q, which East covered. The A won, then he led to the diamond A, scored the heart J and ran his spades. He had figured out a squeeze format whereby he left the club K-Q 4 and heart 8 in his own hand and the final spade plus one card each of the other suits in the dummy. With that setup, if the defender with four clubs originally also held the heart 10, the squeeze with the final spade would work when South discarded the heart 8 from his own hand--regardless of which defender was being harassed. It happened that East, with the heart 10, also had the club length and discarded one of the suit. When the heart 10 failed to appear on that trick, South then led to his clubs and scored all three of them.
